Murder Suspected In Finding of Body

Lono Officers Continue Efforts to Identify Corpse Found on Tracks

LONOKE. Following the finding of the body of an unidentified man, aged about 35, on the Rock Island tracks 1 1/2 miles west of Carlisle Thursday morning, a coroner's jury returned a verdict of death by being struck by a train. Coroner Fred Berry and Sheriff R. O. Benton said, however, they were not satisfied with the verdict and would continue the investigation as to the man's identity and to how he was killed.

A paper was found in the pocket of the man bearing the name of C. H. Yates, Route No. 1, Fayette, Ark. A deputy sheriff at Monette said the description of the dead man fitted that of a man named Weaver, and it was learned tonight that Mrs. Weaver is on her way here to attempt to identify the body.

Officers indicated the man may have been killed and his body placed on the tracks to lead the murder. Engineer W. E. McColpin of passenger train No. 111 testified before the coroner's jury that the man was sitting between the rails with his head on his knees, and did not move as the train approached. E. O. Plummer, fireman, said he did not see the accident, as he was busy at the time. Both of the engine crew are from Little Rock.

The dead man was five feet, six inches in height, had blue eyes and curly, sandy colored hair. He wore cotton trousers and a blue flannel checkered shirt. The body is being held here until identification is completed.

Grove Allows But 5 Hits; Athletics Beat Cards 8 to 1

Big Left-Hander Sets St. Louis Batters Down in Order

SERIES IS TIED UP

The Seventh and Final Game at St. Louis Saturday

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. Louis—Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove held the Cardinals to five hits Friday while his teammates battered out an 8-to-1 victory, tying up the 1931 World Series at three games apiece.

The seventh and deciding game will be played at St. Louis at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Grove is Good
Friday's victory, second of the series for Grove, against one defeat, showed the big left-hander in the superb form of mid-season. He was air-tight except in the sixth inning, when a double by Flowers and a single by Frisch put over the Cardinals' lone tally. In both previous games Grove allowed 12 hits, winning the series opener when Derringer blew up for the Cardinals; but losing his second start, as "Wild Bill" Hallahan held the As to three hits.

Friday's game was something of a repetition of the series opener. Derringer again opposing Grove. But Grove, showing much better than on that occasion, while Derringer was decidedly worse.

"Gabby" Street's right-handed giant from the hills of old Kentucky went up in the air in the fifth inning, the Athletics batting around to score four runs. Foxx singled, Miller was out. Dykes walked. Williams singled, scoring Foxx. Bishop walked, filling the bases. Haas walked, forcing in Dykes for the second run. Cochran hit safely to score Williams for the third tally. Al Simmons walked, forcing in Bishop for the fourth run of the inning. Miller was out, ending the inning, the entire team having batted around.

Derringer Yanked
Manager Street yanked Derringer the next inning, Sylvester Johnson being sent in to pitch. The As broke loose again in the seventh, running in four more tallies. Lindsey gave way for a pinch-hitter in the eighth, and Flint Rhem finished the game for St. Louis.

"Pepper" Martin disappointed the home fans by going hitless, when he needed but one more safety to break the all-time World Series record for hits.

Score by innings:
St. Louis 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—15 Philadelphia 0 0 0 0 0 4 0 0—8 8 1

Banker's Daughter To Be Questioned

Mrs. Truman Shaddox, Formerly Miss Hudspeth, Returns

HARRISON—The 16-year-old daughter of A. T. Hudspeth, fugitive north-west Arkansas banker, and herself missing since August 27, returned to Harrison late Wednesday night, the bride of Truman Shaddox, Harrison youth, but her return has furnished no clue to the whereabouts of her father or other members of the family. News of the marriage of the girl, formerly Blaine Hudspeth, to Shaddox, in Clarksville Tuesday night was revealed here in the society columns of Thursday's Arkansas Gazette.

The young couple visited the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Shaddox and then went to Marshall to visit relatives of the bride. It was said that the couple plan to live here at least temporarily, and prosecuting Attorney Jack Holt, said he expects to question the girl as soon as she returns. Hudspeth is charged with receiving deposits in banks he knew to be insolvent, and with embezzlement of $85,000 from the Citizens Investment Company of Harrison, of which he was president. His total peculations from the investment company and banks in the chain of nine, which he controlled, is estimated at more than a quarter of a million dollars. W. A. ## Highland Orchards Go Under Hammer

World's Largest Peach Orchard Sold Under Foreclosure

NASHVILLE—The Bert Johnson Orchards, the world's largest peach orchard, will be sold at public auction at the court house in this city some time Friday, under a decree of the Howard chancery court in a suit by the Mississippi Valley Trust Company of St. Louis against the Bert Johnson Orchards, Inc., and others, foreclosing a mortgage the St. Louis bank held on the property for approximately $75,000.

The property consists of more than 4,500 acres of land, on a great part of which Elberta peaches are set, and is valued at normal times at more than one million dollars. The crop failures of two years, followed by record low prices for this year's crop, made it advisable for the holder of the first mortgage to foreclose, and the chancery court gave a decree ordering the sale on September 18.

It is reported that several bidders are expected to attend the sale here with a view to bidding on the property, and it is believed that the orchard will bring a good sum in excess of the amount of the first mortgage and court expenses.

Lure of Adventure

THE gold prospector is hitting the trail again. In such famous oldtime fields as those of South Dakota, California, Montana and the Yukon men are getting busy once more, panning the sand of lonely streams and repeating, in miniature, the scenes of the great gold-rush days.

This, it seems, is not due to any new discoveries, but simply to the depression. Gold will buy more than it would a few years ago. The prospector who gets an ounce of fine gold can buy more supplies, equipment and luxuries with it than he could formerly.

None of these prospectors is getting rich. But a great many of them are making a comfortable living, and abandoning gold fields are looking lively. Indeed, in certain parts of Canada so many unemployed men from the cities are trying to turn prospector that the mounted police are beginning to shoo them back, fearing that winter will bring too many hardships to ill-equipped and inexperienced gold-hunters.

Now there isn't any special reason why we stay at home, should be glad to hear about this revival of prospecting. We have never hunted for gold, and we never shall —nor would we know how to do it if we tried. But simply to know that men are wandering along empty mountain anyons, far away looking for the magic metal, is somehow good for us.

We have to take our adventures by proxy, these days.
No new gold strike, not even the most fabulous, could tear us away from the daily routine. Our horizons will always be just about what they are now. But we have dreams; we have imagination; and the prospectors who tramp the western and northern wildernesses are taking us with them, without knowing it. As long as they can go—as long as there is still gold to be found, and lonely country to provide adventure—we do not feel our imprisonment.

That is why stories about gold-seekers, explorers and the like will always have a sure appeal. Our own hopes died when we went into our teens and realized sadly that we would never become pirates or soldiers of fortune or bearded prospectors; but so long as other men can become those things we don't mind quite so much.

We don't get far from home, and we don't have high adventures. But somewhere, far away, the golden door is still open, if only a little. We can tell ourselves that we could if we would. That is enough.

A Big Shot

HISTORIANS of the future may very well speak of the present time as the Era of the Big Shot—referring not to any man or group of men but to a mental attitude.

Borrowed from the underworld, this little expression has crept into everyday use from one end of the country to the other. It is a handy thing. It fits the frame of mind we have evolved; a frame of mind in which we envy the successful man, and aspire to be like him, not because he is better than we are but because we want the money, the recognition and the fame that go with his position.

An example from the newspapers illustrates it.

In a large middle western city there was recently a man who had tired of his wife. He did not want her any longer, but he did want the $2000 or so for which her life had been insured. So he called in his nephew—a lad of 18—and the two of them cooked up a plot which ended in the woman's murder.

Presently they were arrested. They confessed; and the nephew, whose boastful talk among his friends concerning the exploit had led to their downfall, was deeply chagrined.
"I babbed everything and here I am in jail," he said sadly. "I thought I was a big shot. This is what I get for not keeping my mouth shut."

Not a word of remorse for the crime; not one note of sorrow that he could not erase the whole ugly business from existence. Just the shame at the realization that he had failed to become the big shot he thought himself—and self-digust for having talked too freely!

That sort of thing, unluckily, isn't exactly uncommon.
Similar stories have appeared before, and we shall be seeing more in the future. And the whole business is not simply a sidelight on the baseness of human nature; it is a reflection of our habit of showering fame and fortune on any man who has made a go of things, no matter what his line—on any big shot, crooked or honest, who manages to get his head above the level of the crowd.

It isn't only the vicious and the unprincipled who share in this habit. All of us have a part in it. We always tip our hat to a big shot. Is it any wonder that empty-headed youth now and then gets into a muddle over it?

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Senator David Alken Reed of Pennsylvania is commonly regarded here as Andy McDonnell's own representative, as a deeply reactionary and as a very little brother of the very rich.

All of a sudden Senator Reed pops out with a proposal which appears to kick all holders of great wealth right in the midriff and as radical. If not more so, than anything suggested this season by the most wild-eyed member of Congress.

Asserting that wealthy estates should be taxed after death to the point where the heirs, except for widows and dependent children, would have to go to work, Reed lines up with the progressives and other liberal-minded folk who see a great menace in the rapid concentration of wealth and believe heavy taxation is the best cure for the disease.

This must have sounded to some of his multimillionaire admirers as if David suddenly turned bolshevik, for his plan would end all thought of perpetuating the great American fortunes. But the senator is a temperate man, sleeps free from nightmares and, according to his friends, has had that radical idea in his head for a long time.

ANYWAY, Reed certainly has had more than a passing glance at the increasing concentration of wealth. His father's law firm represented the Mellon interests, and now David's firm does. David was counsel for the Steel Corporation before his election to the Senate and is friendly with the du Ponts. Naturally, he also has a wad of money himself.

Dave's friends will tell you that he would not be so widely considered a pal of great big business if it were not for the Mellon shadow and that when Mellon passes from the local scene Reed will look a lot bigger and better than he does now.
They point out that everyone concedes him to be a senator of extraordinary ability and assert that this is by no means the first time he has gone counter to the thought of our biggest and best plutocrats, even including Mellon.

Long years ago he was chairman of an industrial accident commission in Pennsylvania and put through a workmen's compensation act which had the powerful opposition of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association. He at least stamped himself as more progressive than others of his group by arguing that if the manufacturers wouldn't take his bill they would have to accept something more unsatisfactory later on. He was chairman of the immigration subcommittee which drafted the National Origins Immigration restriction act, which was opposed by some of the biggest American manufacturers because they wanted cheap European labor. And when President Coolidge vetoed the postal pay increase Reed stuck right by the letter carriers. The Senate vote which overrode the veto was sure to be very close and Coolidge sent for Mellon to ask him to influence Reed. Reed withstood the pressure.

REED has attracted most attention, however, by his end-of-the-session filibusters, his attempts to get Bill Vane into the Senate, his customary identifications of the welfare of big business with the welfare of everybody and his part in the London naval conference.

Besides a stiff inheritance tax he wants a sales tax and a spreading of the base for income taxes. Instead of what he calls the "soak the rich" program of the progressives, the Reed taxation program apparently is to soak everybody while they are alive and then take a devastating soak at the rich when they are dead. Presumably he will also be willing to support a gift tax to prevent avoidance of estate taxes, for he warns that the very wealthy are adept at evading taxes directed at them.

Reed is 60 years old, eight years a senator and a good debater with fine memory for facts and figures.
His tastes are aristocratic—he collects rare old musical manuscripts, first editions, incunabula and old volumes written by monks on vellum before printing was invented.
He also reads omnivorously. He still plays tennis. But he likes best to put on old clothes, motorboat down the Potomac and shoot ducks. Sometimes he chops a tree down. He and former Senator Phipps of Colorado own a $3000 motorboat.

California, it is reported, may build a dirigible larger than the Akron.
Probably a piece of subtle propaganda to call attention to the wonderful California air.

It's a funny world, this! In this country hard times are blamed on the tariffs. In England, for lack of them, the pound in England has depreciated, and doubtless our iceman has fallen under the influence.

If some people could change their minds, says the office sage, it would be a good thing.

Farmers Unite For Defense of Relief

Chairman Stone and Secretary Hyde Are in On Meeting

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Through the American Farm Bureau federation's 5-point program for "unification of American agriculture" the administration is believed to have welded a chain by which it expects to hold its farm relief setup against impending attacks in congress this winter.

Both Chairman Stone of the farm board and Secretary Hyde of the department of agriculture were present at the federation's meeting in Chicago to throw a thoroughly organized farm front behind the agricultural marketing act.

Sam H. Thompson, former president of the federation, and Frank Evans, long abigh official of the organization, are members of the farm board.

The federation has a membership of almost 1,000,000 farmers, most of them residing in agricultural sections which were interpreted as expressing opposition to existing farm relief laws by changing political complexion in the November elections.

While the new program does not specifically mention the farm board and the agricultural marketing act it blamed "the failure of so many farmers to support existing organizations" as the limiting factor in getting economical, social and educational equality for farm people.

The 5-point program is interpreted as the foundation for the now legendary campaign to "reform the agricultural marketing act by its friends rather than its enemies."

It proposes:

Strengthening state extension services to more completely round up farm people in organization.

The use of all agricultural agencies and the press to instill principles of true co-operation in rural communities.

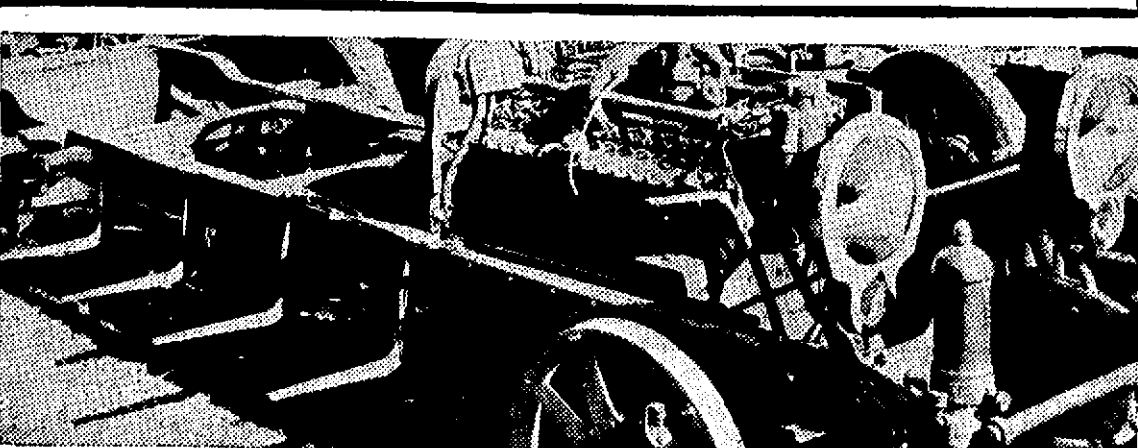

Co-ordination of the work of all agencies.

Assumption by farm agencies of in-

Hope Boy Captain and Guard

DARR. CAPTAIN SECREST

FAYETTEVILLE — Guard position on the University of Arkansas football team are causing Coach Fred Thomsen no worry. Barring injury, the two Earls, Secrest and Darr, are good for sixty minutes of playing time in every game. In fact, Captain Secrest was the only Arkansas player who played the entire game against Hendrix last Saturday.

Secrest, who is the latest of a long list of linemen to captain Razorback football teams in recent years, is playing the greatest football of his career. The Arkansas leader first gained fame while playing with the Hope, Ark., high school Bobcats. He is now serving his third year as a Razorback regular and indications are that he will close his college career in the proverb-ize blaze of glory. Secrest is a hard worker and an inspiration to his teammates.

Darr comes from Jonesboro, Ark. He is a fighter from the work "go" and only his lack of weight has kept him from being one of the great Razorback guards of all time. While Captain Secrest on the other side of the line weighs 185 pounds in playing trim, Darr has a hard time tipping the beam at 165. However, his aggressiveness and fast charging offset his weight handicap. Darr also is a senior and the 1931 season will be his last.

Charles B. Dear of Haskell, Okla., is a substitute guard who will probably have little chance to show his stuff because of the brilliance of Secrest and Darr.

How Very Simple!

YOU may have happily forgotten that this column recently selected an All-America football team for 1931 in advance, without even having seen as much gridiron atmosphere as a blacksmith wearing a headgear. It was a howling success. The only person, in fact, who didn't get down his howls on paper and mail them in, was a coal miner in Siberia who couldn't read. Undaunted, as Jack Sharkey might say, this column again has chosen for itself another fragile limb from which to fall. Today we are going to try to tell you who will win the championships in the various sectors this fall. Is there no limit to man's ingenuity?

Irish Unbeaten

To begin with, Notre Dame will be national champion. If the Irish can beat Indiana, they have only eight more games, with such setups as Northwestern, Southern California, Army and a few more. It will be just as hard as Babe Ruth trying to score on a home run. In the east Army gets the call. The merry men from West Point will beat Yale and Harvard easily (why couldn't those two games be scheduled on the same afternoon?). The only game Army will lose will be to Notre Dame, and it's getting so that losing to Notre Dame doesn't count. Colgate and Fordham for what's left.

Has "Mostest Men"

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA will win the championship in the Pacific Coast Conference. Coach Jones has too many men and they are too big. Stanford will be better than last year. Jimmy Phelan is building a good team at Washington, but hasn't got it quite ready.

In the Big Ten Northwestern again will be tied with Michigan, with no defeats, but if these two teams could meet somebody would be beaten and it wouldn't be Northwestern. Illinois will win a couple of games just for souvenirs.

In the Southern Conference, the officers came close enough to the fugitives in the growing dark to exchange shots with them, but the rough, heavily wooded mountains swallowed them up. All efforts to

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

DAN O'LEARY, 93, is still walking six times around the bases in five minutes. . . . Jim Bottomley set a record this year for runs driven in when he batted an even dozen tallies across the plate in a game with Brooklyn. . . . The outstanding accomplishment for 1931 by Eric "Boob" McNair of the A's was a home run off Wes Ferrell that won a ball game. . . . Twenty Grand, Mate and Sun Beau are to meet Oct. 8 in the Hawthorn Gold Cup. . . . Twenty Grand will be favored, but Sun Beau likes to run when it's a mile chilly. . . . With the re-purchase of Harley Boss, the Senators have three first basemen for 1932.

Tulane is in. That is, if Georgia isn't and Tennessee withdraws. There are three likely winners in the Southern Conference, not counting Vanderbilt which is going to beat a passel of somebody's football teams. Tulane gets the edge, but don't bet on it.

Ah! the Rockies!

THERE is just a chance that the gentle reader of these lines would like to turn an honest penny. If so, put the homestead on Utah to win the Rocky Mountain championship. The only way you can get away from Utah is to move to Reno. Ike Armstrong spends his summers catching wild animals in the mountains and training them to wear football suits.

Along the border, Texas University will be the same kind of a setup Pershing was for the followers of Mr. Villa some years ago. Harvard will have no more trouble beating Texas than it would have changing the seat of learning at Cambridge into a prep school for Princeton.

Kansas will win again in the Big Six. And the family jewels go on Drake.

It's all very simple. obtain information from other people of the hills met with silence. All roads were guarded, so it is believed the three are hidden, aided by sympathetic friends and neighbors.
